

Historic Church of the Epiphany Transformed into $15 Million Wedding and Event Venue Opening This Winter

Epiphany Center for the Arts includes three unique venues, a cafe and a courtyard.

WEST LOOP — After shutting its doors eight years ago, the Church of the Epiphany will come alive again as a wedding venue and entertainment space when it reopens this winter.

Developer David Chase and his wife Kimberly Rachal worked to convert the former church and adjacent property at 201 S. Ashland Ave. into a venue that could host an assortment of events including weddings, live performances, art exhibitions, galas and private events.

The result is Epiphany Center for the Arts, a 42,000-square-foot property that includes three venues (Epiphany Hall, The Sanctuary, The Catacombs), a cafe and a courtyard.

“After three years of restoring and renovating the property, we are excited to finally see our vision for Epiphany come to life,” Chase said, calling the former church a “one-of-a-kind” venue.

Already, acts such as the Flat Cats, Chicago Jazz Orchestra, Pat Malingier and Linda Solotaire are lined up to perform in Epiphany Hall and The Sanctuary.
